City Council Begins the Budget Review Process | $3.3 Billion at Stake

Today, the Budget Review Committee has begun the public hearing to review and investigate Mayor Faulconer's $3.3 billion proposed budget for Fiscal Year 2017.

My budget priorities memo covered community-oriented policing needs, the need for greater educational opportunities, and the need for increased public safety. We need immediate investment into our historically underserved communities.

Public Input and the Budget Process | Get Your Voices Heard

Every community deserves to have the basic necessities to help the residents not just merely survive but to thrive. There is more work to be done, and hearing the public's input is essential to the budget deliberations. I'm passionate about putting our historically underserved neighborhoods first, and making the voices of our communities heard at City Hall.
